Hot Chocolate Butter Rum

Michelle Gayer-Nicholson, Franklin

Rum has been a prominent ingredient in warm drinks ever since the days when Britain's Royal Navy ruled the seas, and hot buttered rum is a tradition dating back to the days when Americans were British subjects. In an inspired fusion of two classic winter drinks, Michelle Gayer-Nicholson of the Franklin Street Bakery in Minneapolis captures the scents of chocolate, full-flavored dark rum, maple syrup, sultry spices, and vanilla cream. The result is quite aromatically happy. Sip this fragrant potion by the fireside with good friends all around. It will make your toes tingle. It's also an excellent remedy for anyone coming down with anything.
